Hunter Communications Teams Up with the Southern Oregon High-Tech Crimes Task Force to combat cyber crime and online child exploitation

Hunter Communications of Medford, Oregon has joined the fight to combat cyber crime and the online sexual exploitation of children. Beginning in February of 2011, the Southern Oregon High-Tech Crimes Task Force will be equipped with a high-speed fiber Internet connection, provided at no cost by Hunter Communications.

This high-speed fiber connection will greatly enhance the capabilities of the task force while performing undercover Internet investigations of various crimes including intellectual property crimes, fraudulent websites, scams, and identifying suspects exchanging images and videos of child sexual abuse.

Without this generous donation from Hunter Communications, the task force would not have been able to obtain fiber connectivity otherwise. This critical service enhancement will make the task force more efficient and effective while serving communities across Oregon and sometimes beyond.

The Southern Oregon High-Tech Crimes Task Force is a regional, multijurisdictional task force providing cyber crime investigation and digital forensic laboratory services to over 50 federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies throughout Oregon. The task force is comprised of members from the Central Point Police Department, Medford Police Department, FBI, Ashland Police Department, Grants Pass Department of Public Safety, Klamath Fall Police Department, and the Jackson County District Attorney's Office.
